NEWSROOM NOTES — Signs of marijuana use are difficult to detect unless the person is under the influence of the drug when observed. Normally, the effects last two to four hours.

In the early stages of influence the person may have bursts of laughter, talk loud, and seem hysterical or animated.

In later stages he may appear sleepy or in a state of stupor.

Coordination may be mildly impaired and depth perception (judging distances) may be distorted. Consequently, driving or operating machinery is dangerous.

Hallucinogen users generally take "acid" in groups. They will sit or lay quietly in a dream-like state or trance. They may become fearful and experience a degree of terror (bad trip) and try to escape from the group.

Since "acid" affects the central nervous system, changes in mood and behavior will occur. They may report distortions of their senses of sight, hearing and touch.

The user of the amphetamines referred to as "bennies," "pep pills," and "speed" will have dilated (enlarged) pupils of their eyes. Their nose and mouth will be dry with bad breath. They may lick their lips frequently and rub or scratch their nose.

It may be observed that they will go for long periods of time without eating or sleeping. They may be argumentative, irritable and nervous. They may start chain smoking.

The most obvious symptoms of the glue sniffer are the odor of the glue on his breath or on his clothes. Plastic bags or paper bags (and even rags) with dried glue are obvious signs along with empty tubes of glue.

Physical signs may be a running nose and watery eyes. Poor muscle control, drowsiness, or even unconsciousness may be symptoms.

Many narcotic users start their addicting habit with cough medicine containing codeine Empty bottles may provide a clue. Heroin sniffers may have redness and rawness around their nose with traces of white powder from inhaling the heroin.

Narcotic addicts who use injections will wear long-sleeve shirts most of the time to hide the scars on the inside of the arms and elbows. Evidence of syringes, bent spoons, cotton and needles is a giveaway.

Behavior will be drowsy. Pupils of the eyes will be small or constricted and will fail to change size when light is shined on them.

Snake Does It

READING, England (UPI)— Brian Jones lets a seven-foot python called Dina loose in his cafe each night to keep burglars away.

"A snake can't easily be tampered with like a burglar alarm," he said, "and I can't imagine anyone staying around long enough to provoke Dina."

Mideast Talks Continue As Cease-Fire Crumbles

By OUR WIRE SERVICES

Egypt's representative to the Middle East talks in New York says there is "little hope" they will lead to peace.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban, in an Arabic-language broadcast over Israeli radio, said Friday night that if peace is achieved "Israel does not aspire to hold all the areas now under its control. An honorable compromise is possible and necessary."

Friday saw the worst fighting since the 90-day cease-fire began Aug. 7. Israeli warplanes attacked Arab guerrilla bases in Jordan after scattered ground clashes in which Israel said 13 guerrillas and one Israeli soldier were killed and seven Israeli soldiers wounded. Jordan complained to the United Nations that two civilians were killed and six wounded in the Israeli air attacks.

In Amman, Jordanian security forces and Palestinian guerrillas — who refused to agree to the cease-fire—fought Friday night. Two guerrillas were killed and several wounded.

Mohammed Hassen El-Zayyat, the Egyptian ambassador to the United Nations, said in New York Friday, "We have accepted this endeavor (the talks) although we have very little hope that the good faith and earnestness necessary for its success would be available."

El-Rayyat, representing Egypt at the talks that started Tuesday, added, "But we have decided to give this little chance 100 per cent backing. We are facing questions of peace and war and these are serious matters."

Eban's remarks over Israeli radio apparently were in reply to statements by Egyptian Information Minister Mohammed Hassenein Heikal, who said earlier this week the peace talks will fail because of Israel's refusal to surrender Arab territory it occupied in the 1967 war.

Jordanian army troops and Palestinian guerrillas fought for three hours in the streets of Amman Friday night and early today. When the shooting ended, two Palestinians were dead but the guerrillas were in control of the central telephone building.

One commando organization, the Popular Democratic Front, said government security forces started the fighting by firing on guerrillas as they plastered posters on the building's walls.

It was the latest in a series of confrontations between the Jordanian government, which has accepted the U.S. plan for peace in the Middle East, and the guerrillas, who have denounced it and pledged to sabotage it.

Early in June, before the United States proposed the cease-fire plan, commandos clashed with Jordanian troops in Amman in battles that resulted in some 1,000 deaths. The fighting did not end until King Hussein agreed to a list of guerrilla demands.

Friday night's clash, punctuated by explosions and machine-gun fire, followed a war council of commando groups that ended with a call for more attacks against Israel.

Yasir Arafat, leader of the Al Fatah guerrilla organization, told cheering delegates that three guerrillas were killed in a raid Thursday but that "the enemy took many casualties. This is our answer to the U.S. peace plan and all surrender solutions."

In Alma Ata, 2,000 miles southeast of Moscow, Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev said in a major foreign policy statement that an "honest observance" of the truce is necessary to allow Jarring to carry out his mission "fully and effectively."

Poor System

LONDON (UPI) — Retired Army Col. Norman Pannell sent letters to several computer-dating firms to see what kind of service they provided. He signed himself Doris Paulson, age 20.

Pannell, secretary of the Marriage Bureau Assn., complained the firms sent him forms asking him if he indulged in pre-martial sex. He said he answered what he thought a "nice middle-class girl" would.

The firms sent him the names of four men, none of whom contacted him.

Anti-war Debate A Waste of Time, Say Legionaires

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The national commander of the American Legion says it would be "a waste of time" to discuss Vietnam and other issues with some youthful dissenters and has rejected a request to put such a discussion on the agenda of the Legion convention.

J. Milton Patrick of Skiatook, Ore., was responding to a request by the People's Army Jamboree, a group organizing antiwar demonstrations during the Legion convention which opened Friday.

"We are always interested in speaking with these youths," Patrick, 54, said Friday, but added: "Some that I have seen on television, to some things I have read that were going to confront us—to these types of individuals, no. I think it would be a waste of time. I don't think I could sell them my views and I don't think they could sell me their views."

An estimated 14,000 Legionnaires are on hand for the convention and an estimated 13,000 young dissenters are in the area, most of them at rock music festivals near here.

Some 4,700 National Guard troops were activated and another 1,300 were placed on alert.

Organizers of the People's Army Jamboree have said their objective is to confront the Legion because of its hawkish stand on the Vietnam war.

The Jamboree has scheduled events that include unauthorized use of two city parks, two downtown rallies and use of Lair Hill and Duniway parks outside the times specified in city permits.

The first rally was scheduled today at Delta Park, where city officials have allowed the group overnight use of facilities. Early Friday evening there were about 50 persons at the park.

That's a Big Lobster

Oscar Amero might be rushing it a bit with the knife and fork before cooking this giant lobster but it is obvious he is proud of the seven pounder he caught while night fishing from a drift boat off the Miami, Fla., shoreline. Oscar felt a tug on his line and reeled in the spiny lobster that measured three feet in length.

Blows Out of Control

Smoke boils into the sky over the Wenatchee, Wash., area where flames have charred at least 55,000 acres of timber. A 39,000-acre fire in the Wenatchee National Forest blew out of control and spread into the Okanogan National Forest. Here one of several uncontrolled blazes in the area swells to 17,000 acres from about 10,000 in the Entiat district where the most critical fires are located, according to the U.S. Forest Service.

Agnew Promises Aid to Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has assured Thai leaders that he will "leave no stone unturned" in efforts to overturn congressional efforts to curb U.S. aid in Southeast Asia, Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman said today.

Thanat said at a news conference that while the majority of the American people and the Nixon administration back U.S. efforts, "there are certain elements which would like nothing better than to push Southeast Asia into Communist hands."

He charged that these elements "want chaos and want to see complete failure of the Nixon Doctrine," under which the United States would help Asian nations defend themselves and help their neighbors.

"The vice president assured the Thai prime minister that he will leave no stone unturned to bring about on effective and prompt and adequate implementation of the Nixon Doctrine," Thanat added.

The foreign minister said Thailand would consider sending troops to Cambodia "only if the threat becomes acute."

"We shall avoid to the maximum extent possible a direct introduction (of troops) into Cambodia," he said.

The foreign minister gave no names in his mention of "certain elements" in the U.S. Congress.

Asked if he was referring to Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., and other antiwar leaders, Thanat replied: "You are very well informed people. There is no need for me to indulge in personalities."

Thanat said the talks with Agnew dealt with principles, rather than specifics. In an earlier news conference for Thai reporters, the foreign minister said Agnew promised he would do what he could to assure that U.S. aid for Thailand is maintained at the present level.

Agnew conferred with the Thai leaders for more than two hours this morning and at a working lunch. One point they made was that Thailand would want financial aid in return for sending troops or other assistance to Cambodia.

The disclosure came one day after an announcement from the U.S. State Department that Thailand plans to withdraw all or most of its 12,000-man force from South Vietnam.

Agnew arrived in Bangkok Friday on the last stop of a five-nation tour through Asia. He returns to the United States Sunday.

Agnew's talks with Prime Minister Thanom Kittakachorn, Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman and other Thai leaders took place against a backdrop of increasing congressional reluctance to underwrite "third nation" operations in Cambodia.

Such financing is a cornerstone of the Nixon Doctrine, the U.S. policy of aiding allied nations in Asia while avoiding, as Agnew put it Friday after visiting Cambodia, becoming "militarily involved."

Jail Underground Editor for Contempt

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A contempt citation was issued Friday against an underground newspaper editor who authorities said appears to have had contact with a group taking credit for a University of Wisconsin bombing.

Mark Knops ordered to appear Monday before a U.S. District Court grand jury concerning the blast, was jailed Friday in Elkhorn where he had been asked to testify before a state grand jury that is investigating vandalism at Whitewater State University.

The Whitewater investigation had been resumed after a bomb tore through an Army Mathematics Research Center at UW's Madison campus, killing a physics scholar.

Officials have not disclosed what link they think there might be between the explosion at Madison and a January fire that destroyed a building during racial strife at the Whitewater campus, 30 miles southeast of Madison.

UW regents announced a $100,000 reward, backed by contributions, for information leading to arrests of persons responsible for Monday's bombing.

Knops is Madison editor of Kaleidoscope, a Milwaukee-based underground newspaper. It issued an "extra" Thursday in which a group identified as the New Year's Gang declared itself responsible for the Madison bombing and for a January bomb attempt at an ordnance plant west of Madison.

Knops said he would refuse to disclose his news source.

State Atty Gen Robert Warren reconvened the grand jury that had investigated the Whitewater fire, and subpoenaed Knops.

Communists Ambush Truck Convoy

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist troops ambushed a U.S. infantry convoy on a mountainous highway in the central highlands Friday, touching off a day-long battle that cost the worst American casualties in ground fighting in five weeks.

The U.S. command said today six Americans were killed and 26 wounded. Two Communists were known killed and one was taken prisoner. Field reports said most of the casualties were inflicted on a rifle platoon of the 4th Infantry Division, which reinforced the convoy defenders in a helicopter airlift.

The command also said four other Americans were killed and one was wounded when a UH1 Huey helicopter gunship was shot down near the ambush site northeast of An Khe, 240 miles northwest of Saigon in the central highlands.

It was the fifth helicopter crash this week. A total of 40 Americans were killed or missing and believed dead in the five crashes. The worst crash was Thursday when a big troop-carrying CH47 Chinook helicopter was hit by Communist fire.

In Cambodia, Communist troops launched an attack six miles from Phnom Penh Friday just hours after Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, on an Asian tour, left the capital. A military spokesman said the Communists attacked the village of Moat Krasas Krao Late Friday and that sporadic fighting continued this morning.

In Saigon, the military spokesmen said the deaths in the fighting around the ambushed convoy were the highest in a single ground action in South Vietnam since July 22, when 12 GIs were killed in an ambush near Combat Base Ripcord—an outpost subsequently abandoned by the Americans.

Spokesmen said the 4th Infantry Division convoy was traveling along the highway when it was hit by small arms, automatic weapons and rocket-propelled grenade fire. The infantrymen called in helicopter gunships and fighting went on throughout the day.

The U.S. command also reported three Americans killed and two wounded in several clashes about 82 miles north of Saigon Friday.

Misdirected U.S. mortar fire Friday landed in a hamlet near Xuan Loc during a predawn fight between Communists and U S 25th Infantry Division troops, U.S. spokesmen said. Three Vietnamese civilians were killed and 13 wounded.

Con-Con Votes to Retain Modified Cumulative Voting

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — In a debate filled with charges of sellout and panic, the Illinois constitutional convention finally disposed of one of its most controversial issues by placing the unique practice of cumulative voting in the proposed constitution.

The delegates Friday voted 60-41 to include the politically sensitive question in the main body of the constitution and to submit a separate question asking voters if they want cumulative voting abolished through the establishment of single member House districts.

The action represented a total convention reversal on what has become one of the convention's most predominant and hotly argued issues.

Earlier this month, the delegates voted to leave cumulative voting out of the constitution, substituting single member House districts for the current three member ones, and submitting a separate question asking voters if they wanted the practice, unique to Illinois, retained.

"Age of Mediocrity"

The convention is now in the process of third or final reading of the new constitution and after the Friday vote, it is highly unlikely the matter of cumulative voting will come up again

"You have sold out to the newspapers and the politicians. . . , You have guaranteed a continuing age of mediocrity in the Illinois House," an angry William Sommerschield, Elmhurst, told his fellow delegates.

Politicians of both parties and Chicago newspapers strongly objected when con-con left cumulative voting out of the main body of the constitution.

At the convention, Chicago organization Democrats wanted the practice left in the document but Republicans were divided. The 60 votes to place the matter in the constitution were just enough. It took 59.

"You are in a panic. . . . You are letting a few newspapers tell you what to do. . . . You are afraid," the Rev. Francis X. Lawlor said. Lawlor is a Chicago delegate, but not an organization Democrat.

Voter Apportions Votes

Under the cumulative system, a voter may apportion his three votes among candidates in the House districts.

If only one vote is cast, the candidate receiving it is credited with three votes. If two votes are cast, the candidates receiving them are each credited with one and a half votes and if three votes are cast, each candidate receives one.

In theory, each party in a House district is supposed to put up two candidates but opponents of cumulative voting say the practice has led to "sweetheart deals" in which the parties agree to run only three candidates, assuring the election of all three and "robbing the voters of a meaningful choice."

The measure placed in the constitution Friday contains a provision that no party may run less than two candidates in a House race. This provision is designed to check the sweetheart deals.

Supporters of the cumulative system say it guarantees minority representation in the General Assembly, the purpose for which it was written into the 1870 constitution.

LOOKING AROUND

By E. G.

Sunday, Aug. 10th . . . arrived in Anchorage late last night — but more about that city later . . . Alaska is so different from the other 49 states that for the most part have had the feeling of being in a foreign country . . . arose at 6 o'clock this morning — turned on the TV to get a weather report . . . no weather report, but the "Discovery Singers," an Anchorage choral group, was singing "My Country 'Tis Of Thee" and I knew for sure that I was in the good old USA . . . it was a marvelous send-off for another flight above the Arctic Circle — this one a two day visit to Kotzebue and Nome.

Flew the Alaska Airlines Golden Nugget, featuring the Golden Samovar Service . . . red and green velvet seats . . stewardesses in red and black cossack type dress . . . they dispensed a Russian drink (Piroshky) from a beautiful gold samovar . . . made of one part vodka, two parts pasha (a Turkish liqueur) it tasted much like a "Black Russian" . . . for our dining pleasure we were served Golden Bolshoi Troika borsch, and sliced cucumbers . . . borsch, a beet soup, was delicious — and the Troika tasted much like the marvelous Finnish "pasties" that my friend Crystal Gustafson prepares.

As we started our flight we had an unforgettable view of Anchorage, with the high-rise peaks of the Chugach mountains in the background . . . thrilling was the close view of Mt. McKinley — the beautiful mountain we didn't get to see while in the national park . . . as we crossed the Arctic Circle we set our watches back one hour . . . we were in the Bering Sea Time Zone — four hours earlier than Dixon . . . it is the "last time zone in the world — beyond this, today is tomorrow" . . . the pilot on this flight was a fun pilot . . . as we crossed the Arctic Circle, he dropped the plane quickly — gave us three rapid bumps in succession and we knew we were over the line . . . now have two certificates verifying crossing that latitude.

Kotzebue is the second largest Eskimo village . . . population is 2,100 . . . 85 per cent of the inhabitants are Eskimo — 75 per cent of whom make their living off the land by hunting and fishing . . . 13 villages comprise the area . . . they have only 11 miles of road so the mode of transportation is plane or boat . . . temperatures drop 25 below — but with the "chill factor" the winds can drop the reading to 149 degrees below zero . . . they average 38-50 inches of snow . . . Kotzebue is 30 miles above the Arctic Circle . . . the name means "Eskimo Island" . . . prices are high and wages are low.

A 20-ton hunk of jade stands near the airport . . . it is valued at $100,000 . . . here, as at Barrow, the natives carve beautiful jade objects, using diamond tools to cut the hard stone . . . the Orient purchases great quantaties of Alaska jade — the huge orders increasing annually . . . Jade Mountain, 160 miles east of Kotzebue is the chief source of supply.

There are five churches in Kotzebue — Friends, Episcopal, Catholic, Baptist and the Church of God . . . the Episcopal church is called the "Church of St. Georges In The Arctic" . . . as it was Sunday — and though there wasn't service — I entered the church and thanked God for all His blessings . . . was told the rector was on a fishing trip . . . the exterior and interior is of pinewood — all the furnishings, light fixtures communion rail and altar . . . before the atar is a magnificent polar bear rug . . . I signed the registry, to let the rector know that a communicant from St. Luke's parish had been there.

Kotzebue is so unlike Barrow . . . the latter is more primitive and is as yet not commercialized . . . if you take a picture of a Kotzebue Eskimo, their hand immediately comes out for money . . . in Barrow, one doesn't take their picture without asking permission — and they expect nothing in return but your smile and a "thank you" . . . Kotzebue Sound is known as the "Polar Bear Capitol of the World" . . . 150 miles out hunters are landed by plane on the frozen Sound . . . 180 polar bears were taken here last year.

The town of Kotzebue has a general store owned by a Mexican, a post office, one bank, a trading post, two or three hotels, a guide service, a hamburger hut, one filling station and a green quonset hut known as the Saturday night hotel . . . it's really the city jail . . . there is one local policeman . . . one state trooper is responsible for a 50,000 square mile area . . . and oh yes, there are two saloons so you can "bar hop" so Reggie, our guide, told us.

Visited Ootukahkuktuvik — a "place having old things" . . . on display were the famous Ethel Washington dolls, made by Ethel Washington, widow of George Washington whose brother was Abraham Lincoln . . . read it several times — the aforementioned is correct . . . the missionaries couldn't pronounce the Eskimo names so they just gave them the name of a well known person . . . in the museum was a copy of the Mukluck Telegraph last printed in 1956 . . . no wonder it folded — for in the society news was this juicy little item . . . "Archibald Ferguson and his girl friend are spending the winter touring the States in their new super deluxe Cadillac. Mrs. Ferguson is home keeping watch on the trading post. If business remains good she hopes to get shoes for her children."

Got a real charge out of seeing "America's smallest and most unique National Forest" . . . had read about it while browsing through the Ketchikan museum . . . this National Forest (really not under the administration of the U.S. Forest Service) consists of but one tree — a black spruce — rooted in frozen soil near Kotzebue above the Arctic Circle . . . "the tree was planted by members of the 748th Aircraft and Warning Squadron of the Kotzebue Air Force Base in 1958 . . . they planted a seedling to see if it could survive the rigorous climate and to add a touch of beauty to the monotonous arctic landscape and be a reminder of a gentler climate" . . . it has survived and the men built a white picket fence around it . . . the tree is now 11 feet tall with a circumference of about 5 feet . . . the permafrost in this area extends to a depth of 40 feet, with only 2-3 feet of soil defrosting during the summer.

"Be it ever so humble there's no place like Nome" . . . population is 2,360 . . . there are seven bars and eight churches . . . the jail is in the basement of the post office . . . Alaska's oldest bank is here . . . banks want eight per cent interest on loans and a hunk of the profit . . . a million dollar sea wall now protects the town from violent Bering Sea storms . . . at the Breaker's Bar you see the famous paintings of the "Shooting of Dangerous Dan McGrew" . . . the Polar Bear is noted for the "Bering Ball cocktail" . . . there's a "Glue Pot" and the "Board of Trade Bar" . . . the Nome Drug and Jewelry proclaims "on this spot in 1905, during a fight between two prospectors over a gal of ill repute, a lamp was smashed that started off a blaze that wiped out most of Nome's business district."

During the 1898 gold rush, miners took a million dollars from the beach in two months . . . the census in 1900 was 12,488, with another five to ten thousand living in tents along the beach . . . sanitation was taken care of when it was ordered, under penalty of fine and arrest, that all persons use public latrines . . . tickets for latrines sold for ten cents or three for a quarter . . . the largest nugget discovered weighed 182 ounces and was valued at $3,285 . . . the estimated amount of gold taken between 1900 and 1904 was close to thirty million . . finding "your fortune was one thing; hanging on to it in the saloons and along Nome's infamous row was another story . . . many a miner made it in a season, only to lose it in one night on the town" . . . it is estimated that there is still $5 billion in recoverable gold in the area . . . with the price of gold it's not worth the diggin'.

We tried our hand at panning for gold at the Basin Creek Mining claim of the Engstrom family . . . a nugget about the size of a pin head was my reward . . . it's hard work — so wasn't struck by gold fever . . . the Engstroms have a gold dredge in operation on their claim — one of the few remaining . . . it was fascinating to watch.

A highlight of the Nome visit was meeting Albro B. Gregory, editor of the Nome Nugget . . . he resembles Ernest Hemmingway — only much more handsome . . the paper is "published daily except Sunday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday" . . . circulation is 1,600 . . . has three presses and did have three printers — but one got drunk so he fired him . . . and how he dislikes Hickel, the Alaskan appointed by Nixon as our Interior Secretary . . . in fact, didn't meet an Alaskan who didn't cuss Hickel.

On our flight back to Anchorage we were supposed to cross the International Date Line and skirt the coast of Siberia . . . unable to do so as the pilot was notified that a Russian fighter plane was on the prowl . . . Alaskan pilots take no unnecessary chances.

Y Pledge Presented

J. K. Hyatt, right, district manager of the Central Telephone Co., looks on while G. F. Hansen, left, district commercial superintendent, presents a check for $2,250 to Donald R. Lovett, president of the Dixon Family YMCA, on the front steps of the new 'Y' Building. This represents the third scheduled payment on the Central Telephone Company's pledge to the YMCA Building Fund. In accepting the payment, Lovett commented, "We are deeply gratified that our contributors are making their payments as pledged. This is very important now that the new YMCA Building is moving ahead with such rapid strides."

Hatlo's They'll Do It Every Time

The Almanac

Today is Saturday, Aug. 29, the 241st day of 1970 with 124 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1852 Brigham Young proclaimed the "celestial law of marriage," thus signifying his approval of the practice of polygamy among Mormons.

In 1960 the Premier of Jordan and 11 others were killed when a time bomb exploded in his office.

In 1962 President John F. Kennedy appointed Arthur Goldberg to fill the Supreme Court vacancy left by the retirement of Felix Frankfurter.

In 1965 American astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad landed safely to end the 8-day orbital flight of Gemini-5.

A thought for the day: Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "Put not your trust in money, but put your money in trust."

Senate Committee Approves $55,000 Farm Subsidy Ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee approved Friday a farm bill limiting payments to growers at $55,000 annually for any one farm crop.

This was the amount approved earlier by the House in passing legislation setting up a new three-year farm program.

While the Senate, in debating an agriculture appropriations bill earlier this year, adopted a $20,000 limitation, Chairman Allen J. Ellender, D-La., of the Senate Agriculture Committee said he anticipates no difficulty in winning Senate approval of the $55,000 figure.

The bill approved by the Committee altered considerably provisions of the bill which the House passed, a bill carrying a price tag estimated at about $3.5 billion.

As explained by Ellender and committee aides, under the bill the 1971 wheat program will remain as it has been the past three years. But a referendum is authorized for next year to determine if growers prefer to continue as in the past or switch to a set aside program in 1972 and 1973.

The bill also establishes a minimum wheat loan of $1.25 a bushel.

For feed grains the bill generally follows the House bill but sets a loan minimum of $1 a bushel.

Aides said the Senate version provides a slightly better payment program for cotton growers than does the House bill.

The House said the payment should be sufficient so that when added to the loan price the farmer would receive no less than 35 cents a pound. The Senate bill says the payment would bring the price up to 35 cents or 65 per cent of parity, whichever is greater.

Where the House bill called for a national cotton acreage allotment of 11.5 million acres, the Senate bill would provide a base allotment of 14.5 million acres. Under the Senate bill the secretary of agriculture may require a set aside of 12½ per cent, compared with 33 per cent in the House bill.

The Senate bill also would authorize the secretary to permit a 25 per cent increase in allotments. However, cotton grown on this extra acreage would receive no loans or supports.

The Senate bill generally follows the House bill provisions on dairy and wool programs.

Dixon High Changes

Many physical plant changes have been made at Dixon High School since the 1969-70 school year.

Room 307 has been converted from business education shorthand laboratory to art education. This more than doubled the art facility and added considerable storage to the art area. The shorthand laboratory was moved from 307 to the main floor in room 152 which did house a classroom for the home economics department. The special education class will move to the agriculture classroom and the agriculture classes will meet in the agriculture shop. Room 101, which was a former English classroom, will serve as a group guidance area to be used by the guidance office and the social worker.

A storage area under the present drafting room has been converted into a classroom to be used by the foreign language and social studies departments. The new double portable classroom area has been added for a multiple use. Teachers will have offices throughout the building and in this new building to be used during their conference periods.

Individual counseling by the teachers with students will take place. Teachers can meet together or with parents in small offices designed in the building. Students will be working with other students in this building in an expanded tutoring program.

The building has been located just north of the main building to provide easy access by students, teachers and parents. New lighting will be evident in many of the halls of DHS. Lancaster gymnasium has had the main floor refinished, giving it a much-lighter appearance. Of course, all corridors and classrooms will have received their annual cleaning.

City Police Report

Charles T. Dobyns, 26, 1230 E. River Rd., was charged with disorderly conduct on a complaint signed by Grant E. Burger Jr., 1652 N. 19th, Sylvis. According to the police report, Dobyns followed Burger into Dixon on Ill. 2, and stopped at the intersection of River St. and Galena Ave. and tried to start a fight.

An Oregon youth, Kenneth W. Kernes, 18, was charged last night with attempting to purchase liquor as a minor on a complaint signed by Jack Andrews.

Kernes is scheduled to appear Sept. 11 in Lee County Magistrate Court.

Sinnissippi Mental Health Center Completes Fourth Year of Service

Sinnissippi Mental Health Center has completed its fourth year of service to residents of Lee, Carroll, Whiteside, and Ogle Counties. Brought into being as the result of a concerned citizenry and sustained by increasing demands for service, the Center's short history is a story of responsible growth to the communities it serves.

The Center provides confidential, professional, out-patient mental health services to the emotionally upset, mentally ill and mentally retarded. Direct services to clients include diagnostic work-ups and a variety of treatment programs. The Center also offers consultation to professionals in related fields and provides educational programs to community groups, such as seminars, lectures, and presentations.

People seek help from the Center for many reasons, such as crises in one's life, minor emotional upset, learning problems of children, marital disharmony, alcoholism, drug abuse, delinquency, neurosis, psychosis, and other problems of living and adjustment.

Lee County received proportionately more service from the Center this past year than did the other counties. While the population of Lee County represents only 23.5 per cent of the total population served, 27 per cent of all cases were from Lee County.

Dixon residents receive the majority of service provided Lee County. A study in March 1970 of the current case load revealed that 107 clients were from Dixon out of a total of 155 from Lee County, or 69 per cent of the total.

Over one out of every 100 residents of the counties served were seen at the Center this past year alone. This included both clients and other family members involved in the clients' treatment at the Center.

The Center continues to expand its program to meet the demand for service. There has been a 23 per cent increase in the number of clients served for the 1969-1970 fiscal year compared with the previous year. Two hundred ten new clients from Lee County sought assistance during this period, not including those clients who continued in treatment from the preceding year.

A recent innovation at the Center has been the Community Management Program. While it is currently in a developmental stage, it is designed to enhance treatment services through a community-based supportive type of relationship with specified clients of the Center.

The Sinnissippi Mental Health Center is located on the Dixon-Sterling Freeway and is under the direction of Philip A. Jorgensen, ACSW, executive director.

Open Child Care Center at Sauk

The Child Care Center at Sauk Valley College will open its fourth year of operation this fall with revised student and faculty rates and with a cooperative work program for mothers making use of the facility.

Philip S. Osborn, dean of instruction, said the purpose of the center is to provide daytime care and supervision of children whose parents are attending classes at the college.

The center, licensed by the state of Illinois as a child care facility, is a self-supporting operation designed to provide a service for Sauk Valley College students. No public tax money is used to support the facility. The center, which accepts children from 2 to 6 years of age, is financed by fees paid by parents of children enrolled at the center.

This fall students will pay $90 per semester to register a child in the center for four hours a day five days a week. College faculty and staff members registering children at the center will pay $120 per semester.

Osborn said that in addition to the semester rate, weekly and hourly rates have been established as well this fall for the first time. Students will pay $10 per week or 75 cents per hour for short-term use of the facility while faculty and staff will pay $13 per week or 75 cents per hour.

Osborn said the purpose of establishing weekly and hourly rates is to open the service to students enrolled in short courses and special conferences at the college.

A cooperative work program will also be instituted this fall. Under the program, a mother would have the option of working as a part-time supervisor in the center six hours each week. Working mothers will receive a $40 reduction in rate per semester in exchange for this work.

Inquiries regarding enrollment in the center or the cooperative work program option should be directed to the office of the dean of instruction.

State Police Accidents

Illinois State Police ticketed Clinton East, 67, Tampico, for driving too fast for conditions following an accident at 10:35 a.m. Friday.

East's car and one driven by Dean Van De Wiele, 23, Davenport, Iowa, were eastbound on U.S. Alt. 30, ¾ mile west of Dixon, when the Van De Wiele auto slowed down and stopped due to traffic ahead and was struck in the rear by the East auto.

Damage amounted to $100 each for both autos.

A car driven by Robert E. Smith, Byron, struck a cow, owned by Darrell Behmer, Stillman Valley, in an early morning mishap today. Smith was westbound on Ill. 72, near Stillman Valley, when the animal ran in front of his auto.

Value of the cow was estimated at $220. Smith's auto received $200 damage.

Into Business

BRISTOL, England (UPI) — Police have arrested John Harvey, a former bus conductor, for going into business himself.

Authorities charged Harvey put on his old uniform, went to a bus station, boarded an empty bus about to make its rounds and pocketed the fares he later collected during the day.

A grab bar placed strategically on the wall above the bathtub is a must safety measure.

Sauk To Offer Team Teaching

Sauk Valley College and the Dixon State School have embarked on a pioneering venture for the fall semester, marking a milestone in the college academic history.

For the first time, since its creation five years ago, the college is planning to use team teaching. The plan came about as the college responded to requests of the state school. The inauguration of the technique comes through the offering of Child Care Aide 100, The Children's Institution, to be taught at DSS on Wednesday evenings, starting Sept. 16. The initial class has been filled with state school employees as they upgrade their patient care skills.

Sauk Valley arrangements have been carried out by Philip Osborn, Dean of instruction, Fred Nesbit, chairman, Division of social studies and public services, and Maxine Peterson, instructor of psychology. DSS consultants to the planning are Hazel Moss, director of in-service nursing division training, and Lois Eichman, nursing instructor. The teaching will be shared by Mrs. Peterson and Mrs. Eichman.

Humphrey Likes Senator Hatfield Anti-war Effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate measure to halt U.S. battlefield actions in Vietnam has the support of former Vice President Hubert Humphrey, once an advocate for former President Lyndon B. Johnson's war policy.

Humphrey, titular leader of the Democratic party and campaigning in Minnesota for a Senate seat, announced his support of the McGovern-Hatfield amendment, saying, "It offers every possible protection for American military manpower and will bring our men safely home."

The amendment, Humphrey said in a telegram to Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., "together with a standstill ceasefire and the conduct of new free elections in South Vietnam, provides our best hope for peace."

Meanwhile in Friday's floor debate, Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., scorned the measure as the "lose the peace amendment," adding he could not believe it had been introduced with any idea of becoming law.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., responded to criticism from Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and others that the measure is a blueprint for America's first military defeat.

"Is it disloyal to America to vote for the preservation of American lives?" Hatfield asked. "Is it wrong to vote for withdrawal from a war in which victory is not the goal?"

In essence the amendment holds President Nixon to his announced reduced troop level of 280,000 by next April, forbids spending beyond April for anything but withdrawal of all troops by Dec. 31, 1971, and grants asylum for any Vietnamese asking it.

Nixon Compromises On Welfare Program

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) —Hoping to save the "flagship" of his domestic programs, President Nixon agreed Friday to a Democratic compromise which would postpone for a year his $4.1 billion family assistance program while it is tested.

In a special statement, reinforced by emotional appeals from his advisers, Nixon said he is "gravely troubled" that Congress would fail to act on his program, which for the first time would guarantee a minimum $1,600 income to families with children.

"The present legislation is too far advanced, the need for reform is too great, for this to be permitted to happen," he said.

Ribicoff Suggestion

Nixon's move was a dramatic attempt to pry his program, already being touted in Republican campaign oratory, from the Senate Finance Committee where it has languished since April 16, with some of the most vocal opposition coming from his own party. It passed the House earlier on an overwhelming vote.

The compromise, proposed by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, a former secretary of the Health, Education and Welfare Department in the Kennedy administration, would delay the start of the program until Jan. 1, 1972.

During the intervening year, beginning Jan. 1, 1971, the administration would set up three pilot test projects in a farming area, an urban area and a nonindustrial area to tool up the national program. Vermont and Arkansas were considered two likely starting points.

About Gun Control

One of the more popular bumper stickers has it that "When Guns Are Outlawed, Only Outlaws Will Have Guns."

Surprisingly, proponents of gun control legislation agree with the slogan—so long as it is understood that what they advocate is not the outlawing of private arms but the registration of them, just as we register all kinds of property from automobiles to sailboats to pedigreed chihuahuas.

They acknowledge that no law could keep criminals from getting their hands on guns. But simply because criminals would not obey a gun registration law, police would have that much more power to take guns away from them.

An example would be if firearms were discovered during the search of a premises for some other reason. The weapons, even if not illegal in themselves, could be seized if they had not been registered.

However, far and away the greater number of homicides and attempted homicides are committed not by criminals but by ordinary law-abiding people. Most gun deaths occur in the home and involve family members or friends. This is the area where it is believed gun control could be of greatest value.

University Heights, Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland, is one of a number of communities around the country which is not waiting for federal legislation.

The major recently stated that by virtue of his city's gun registration ordinance, he is convinced that in at least two cases potential tragedy has been averted.

Both cases involved police investigation of family fights and the confiscation of unregistered revolvers found in the homes, revolvers that could have been reached for in the heat of the quarrel, or some later quarrel, and used.

The ordinance will not stop either family from buying a new gun in University Heights and registering it, or from going into the next-door community and buying a gun and not registering it.

But the expense and bother involved may at least make them pause and think seriously about whether they really need another gun.

All-Purpose Grass

A grass that can thrive in deserts on salty underground water, that can substitute for wood pulp in the manufacture of high-quality paper, that can combat water pollution while providing desert-rich Mideast nations with a new source of income — it sounds too good to be true, but just such a "wonder grass" has been developed by Israeli scientists.

According to Environment Action Bulletin, tests of the grass — called juncus-esparto — in paper mills in England and Scotland yielded such excellent results that one of the mills has placed a bid for the entire harvest of the grass once it reaches the economically profitable level of 10,000 tons annually.

Meanwhile, the reedlike grass has found other uses. It is employed in pharmaceutical laboratories, as dairy cattle fodder, in the manufacture of woven mats and other wicker items, in the production of plastic sheets and as an insulating material.

And as an added bonus, the wonder grass can be used to purify urban and industrial waste water by breaking down noxious compounds and destroying harmful micro-organisms. Waste water filtered through juncus-esparto is said to be clean enough to drink.

Hold Up on Phosphates

Both phosphates and breakfast cereals have been under attack lately.

The one, an ingredient in laundry detergents, has been blamed for providing too much nutrition to lake algae by way of sewage runoff. The other has been accused of providing too little nutrition to children.

But the two wrongs may be combined to make a right, if an experiment being conducted in Ann Arbor, Mich., proves out. In a program aimed at finding a tooth decay preventive, nearly 1,000 teenage students in that city's public schools are being given breakfast cereals enriched with phosphates.

Tooth decay is caused by acids from decomposing food which dissolves minerals in teeth, explains Dr. Nathaniel Rowe, professor of dentistry at the University of Michigan and director of the program. It goes on, he says, to the tune of some $4 billion a year which Americans spend on dental repair bills.

Theoretically, showering teeth with phosphate ions should replace the minerals taken from teeth by food acids. Animals fed a diet high in phosphate content have shown greatly reduced tooth decay. The same thing should happen in humans.

The researchers will know for sure when the three-year experiment is completed in the spring of 1971.

Jobs Go Begging

Two recently completed studies about welfare and unemployment have put holes in three commonly held views about the people on welfare or unemployed.

The first year of a guaranteed-income experiment in New Jersey has shown that people will not reduce their work effort substantially if they get cash assistance from the government. "The desire to work among the poor is much stronger than anyone thought," Dr. John O. Wilson of the Office of Economic Opportunity reported.

An investigation for 1½ years in the St. Louis ghetto labor market has revealed 1) that inter-city workers and suburban employers don't need each other and 2) hardcore unemployment seems to be more the exception than the rule in the ghetto. "The real problem," according to the director of the federally-financed St. Louis study, "is not card-core unemployment at all, but chronic exposure in the job market. Poor and uneducated persons can find work, but the work they find is dull and poorly paid and offers no future. The turnover in such jobs is high for all persons, black and white."

These two studies back up President Nixon's proposals for a family program and the argument that lack of hope for a better future, rather than laziness, lies behind the reluctance of some poor people to take society's least attractive jobs.

Isolation, Fear On Tollways

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) — I have a little saga about life on the open road which discloses some of the oddities of this tangled-up country today. It all happened on a recent motor trip to the Midwest.

THERE ARE enough disabled cars seen along America's high-speed highways to suggest that some people will have a sense of sharing as they read this. But you have to break down three times in a short space of days, as I did, to get the real feel of things.

On two occasions the car motor "blew" but on the third it was just a broken fan belt. The first episode occurred on a sunny late Sunday afternoon, the other two in the middle of the night. And that, friends, can be scary.

I distributed my favors quite evenly, suffering these separate mishaps on the Pennsylvania, the Ohio and the Indiana turnpikes.

THE FIRST ONE, in Ohio, seemed a bit of a lark. When the car engine went out, we gave the usual distress signal by raising the motor hood and tying a hanky to the radio aerial. Within 15 minutes a state patrolman stopped by and 20 minutes after that a tow truck showed up.

The only trouble there was that the tow truck man had to go down the road to take care of another customer before he could haul us back to a spot where the "repair cycle" could begin. And, upon his return, it took him half an hour to hook up the car. Next morning somebody else did it in eight minutes.

NEXT TIME the fun went out of it. Driving westward in Indiana in the repaired car, we suddenly heard — at 1:30 a.m. only 30 miles from our goal — the loud clanking that spelled fresh trouble. We pulled off the road and sat in the cool dark to await rescue.

There you are, on one of the country's great superhighways, with cars spinning past you at a steady rate. At first, they provide a little comfort, a feeling of life close at hand. But that quickly wears thin as the night lengthens and no help comes.

You discover that sitting in your car on this kind of road, a tightly controlled toll route, a "triumph" of modern America, can be one of the most lonesome and frightening experiences imaginable.

THIS TIME A patrolman did not come for two hours, and the tow truck appeared an hour after that — at 4:30. You cannot telephone anyone. You remember tales of marauders preying upon people in disabled cars, so you properly fear any "help." Except that from official sources.

Even if you decided to go for aid on foot, a chain link fence bordering the turnpike land bars your way. If you could manage to scale that, some farmer probably would either set his dog on you or shoot you. So you sit, in total isolation (Newspapers wrapped around you are very useful if you are not warmly dressed for the cool night hours.)

The Indiana patrolman was apologetic when he finally came. He has nearly 50 miles to cover, and he had stopped for coffee.

IN A TALK later with a Michigan State Police officer, I learned that a serious accident can tie up several patrol cars for hours and leave distressed motorists waiting a long, long time. If a major crime has been committed, all the patrol cars may be pulled off an interstate route for similar long spells.

But, to get to that last adventure, on the Pennsylvania pike. It was another three hour caper in the late night hours. We never did see a patrolman, though apparently he saw us and flashed the word to a tow truck which turned up around 2 a.m.

IN MICHIGAN, police practice is to check every halted car, hood up or not. You never know. In Pennsylvania, officers evidently assume "hood up" means motor trouble, and the tow truck automatically appears. What if the difficulty is illness or death? We never spoke a word with a Pennsylvania officer.

And that road, even in the middle of the night, is a thundering nightmare of trucks jockeying about at high speeds. Watching it makes you long for those nice 15-plane take-off delays at the big airports.

Blessings of a Blah Economy

(Reprinted from the Wall Street Journal)

Forecasting is still anything but an exact science, but the prophets now seem in remarkable agreement about the economy's course in the next few months: It won't be spectacular.

In a recent article in this newspaper, Mr. Malabre reported that most private economists think business may improve slightly, but only slightly. "It's been a blah year, and I expect it to continue to be a blah year," said George McKinney, senior vice president and economist of New York's Irving Trust Co.

"Blah" obviously isn't very good. It isn't likely to bring any significant reduction in unemployment, and it is too soon to say it has sparked any lasting rise in depressed securities prices. Even if there isn't another bankruptcy proceeding as spectacular as the Penn Central debacle, continuing liquidity troubles probably will force a number of smaller firms over the edge.

Nor does a blah year bring joy along the Potomac, where a lot of politicians are nervously looking toward November's elections. The Democrats naturally try to blame inflation and slow business on the Republican Administration and the Administration, with more justice, argues that none of this would have happened without the excesses of its Democratic predecessors.

The GOP, however, isn't too sure that dwelling on the past is politically salable. So party spokesmen talk more of the free-spending habits of the present Democratic Congress and, at the same time, talk of more of the same sort of stimulants that got the economy into trouble before.

This time the stimulants would be taken in moderation, of course. Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, stresses that the Administration opposes "a crash effort" to revive the economy but goes on to say, "We must not underestimate the magnitude of the task we face" in returning to something like full employment.

The task is plainly sizable. But if the economy is to return to a desirable growth rate, on a sound basis, the Government also had better not underestimate the dangers of overstimulation.

The liquidity problems of businessmen, after all, stem in large part from the easy-money days of the recent past. Inflationary finance encourages companies to borrow and discourages them from maintaining cash balances. Monetary restraint is causing problems for many businesses, but it's also prodding them into rebuilding their cash reserves.

In many ways the current year is a period of consolidation, a time for putting operations on a sounder footing. So some of those blah-year statistics also have their bright side. A cautious attitude toward inventories doesn't touch off a business boom, for instance, and yet it can make the economy less vulnerable to a fullfledged recession.

With the economy so sluggish, moreover, businessmen increasingly realize that they no longer can so easily pass along higher costs to their customers in higher prices. This means harder bargaining with their suppliers and with labor unions.

For their part, some unions may be beginning to appraise the future more realistically. The United Auto Workers now is discussing new contracts with the auto companies and, according to a company official, "it's different than it ever was before. The acid comments and propaganda have toned down sharply. . . . Maybe something can come of it."

Maybe so. If everyone can get rid of the notion that unrestrained inflation is the new way of life, perhaps the economy before many months will be in shape to resume significant and sustainable growth.

The key question, suggests Mr. McKinney of Irving Turst, is whether the politicians will be willing to wait that long. If they aren't, they can easily rekindle inflation and push the economy into troubles at least as serious as those from which it is now slowly beginning to emerge.

Nobody enjoys a blah economy, and for many people it can be acutely painful. Will the politicians be patient enough to permit its blessings?

Berger-Ehlers Wedding

A lace-trimmed white silk organza gown was worn by Miss Jeanne Berger, daughter of the Elmer Bergers, Rt. 3, Dixon, when she became the bride of Lyle M. Ehlers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Ehlers Sr., Theresa, Wis., at 2 p.m. Saturday in St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

The Rev. Paul Miller, Monroeville, Ind., uncle of the bride, performed the double-ring wedding when vows were spoken by the couple before an altar decorated with arrangements of white gladioli, and the vocalist, Nelson Ritsema, Kankakee, was accompanied by John Stanley Smith, organist. Their selections included "One Hand, One Heart," "Ave Maria" and the theme song from "Romeo and Juliet."

MR. AND MRS. LYLE M. EHLERS

Attendants

Miss Debbie Ardler, the bride's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Joy Ferraro, Milwaukee, Wis., and Miss Crystal Gustafson, Park Rapids, Minn., were attired in Victorian gowns of navy-blue and white printed organza over matching peau taffeta. Their full-length princess skirts were topped by empire bodices featuring bishop sleeves and white satin sashes ending in back-bows, and white satin ribbons cascaded from their bouquets of white roses.

Full-length insertions of lace edged with lace ruffles accented the bride's A-line gown, which was styled with a wedding-ring neckline and long, full sleeves ending in lace cuffs. Lace also bordered her chapel-length mantilla of silk illusion, and as she approached the altar with her father, she carried a nosegay of white carnations centered by a cluster of stephanotis.

A coat and dress ensemble of aqua silk shantung was worn by Mrs. Berger for her daughter's wedding, and a rhinestone collar accented the two-piece blue shantung costume chosen for the ceremony by the bridegroom's mother. White gardenias formed their corsages.

Myron Ehlers Jr., Theresa, was his brother's best man; serving as groomsmen were Richard Hofer, Hanover, and Lee Orr, Onslow, Iowa, and guests from cities in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Arizona were ushered by Clifford Retzlaff, Platteville, Wis., and the bride's brother, James Berger.

Preceding their departure on a Michigan wedding trip, the newlyweds, who will be residing in the Sunset Heights Apartments, Platteville, Wis., were honored at a reception in Emerald Hill Country Club when decorations were in pink and white.

Presiding at the punch bowl and coffee service were Miss Mary Shimpach and Miss Sue Shimpach, Boscobel, Wis., and guests were registered by Miss Janet Tauer, West Chicago.

Attend University

For traveling, the bride chose a sleeveless navy-blue dress, matching accessories and gold jewelry. She is a junior majoring in elementary education at Wisconsin State University in Platteville, where she is a member of Delta Gamma Phi sorority, and her husband, who is affiliated with Sigma Pi fraternity, is a WSU senior majoring in civil engineering.

Gamma Mu Meeting With Mrs. Hornung

Mrs. Philip Hornung and her co-hostess, Mrs. Jess Morris, entertained Gamma Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Tuesday night at the chapter's first meeting for the new season.

Projects planned for the year were announced, and a discussion was held on planning programs and the appointment of various committees.

New members were welcomed, and the evening's special prize was awarded to Mrs. Gerald Kime, who will be hostess for the next meeting at 8 p.m. Sept. 8.

Dear Ann:

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I feel like a murderer, which I am, in a way, but it was a choice I had to make. A choice between hitting that beautiful Collie puppy or running off the road into a telephone pole and maybe killing my wife and two children.

I was well within the speed limit. It was a perfect moonlit night. The visibility couldn't have been better. Then, out of nowhere, that beautiful puppy appeared. I thought for a moment he was going to make it. Then suddenly, for no reason, he stopped right in the middle of the road. I had to make the choice. So I ran over him.

The kids were asleep in the back. I'm thankful for that. The thump of the wheels didn't awaken them. But my wife was awake and she let out a small cry. We were both too heartsick to speak. Finally she said, "No point in going back. The car coming in the opposite direction ran over him, too."

The accident upset me so I had to go to the doctor to get nerve medicine. He told me I was lucky — that he knew of a whole family that had been killed because they tried to avoid hitting a cat in the road. So, I guess I should look at it that way. But please print my letter, Ann. It might alert dog owners to the necessity of keeping their pets off the roads. — Still Depressed

Dear Friend: Your doctor's remarks were most appropriate. Think about his wise comments when the guilt begins to overwhelm you. You did the right thing.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: Help me, please. I am going with a very attractive man. He wants to marry me and soon. I cannot make up my mind. Here are the facts. He has been married and divorced twice. I would be lying if I said this does not bother me, because it does. He is one of the most impressive men I have ever met — handsome, well built, successful in his business and an excellent athlete. He is a man's man as well as a woman's man.

And now the drawback: he has a temper that flares up for no reason. I find myself weighing and measuring my words, never knowing what will set him off. One innocent sentence can spoil an evening. And when he gets mad, he gets physical. Last night he twisted my arm. I thought he had dislocated my shoulder, but it was all right this morning.

His temper outbursts occur about once every week or 10 days. He is sorry later — then he is as sweet as apple pie. On balance, do you think he would make a good husband? My mother says nobody's perfect — that every girl must give up something to get something. What do you say? — Undecided in Boulder

Dear Undecided: Give up something else. A man who twists your arm during courtship might break your neck after marriage. This romance is like forget it, doll.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't think I am being morbid but this problem is keeping me up nights. I was married to my first husband (Mr. Smith) for 41 years. When he died four years ago we bought a double plot. I want to be buried next to him. I was married three months ago to Mr. Jones. What name should I have on my headstone? Wouldn't it look odd if Mrs. Jones was buried next to Mr. Smith? — Insomnia

Dear Insomniac: The headstone should read "Mrs. Mary Smith Jones."

By Oswald & James Jacoby

We didn't sweep the boards in Stockholm. The open pairs was won by Austria and Italy came in second and third. Fourth place went to Ira Rubin of Paramus, N.J., playing with Jeff Westheimer of New York.

Rubin is one of the great theorists. Some players think he would do better if he gave up some of his science for flying by the seat of his pants.

All conventions are allowed in a world's championship and Ira came up with a beauty for this one.

He invented a multipurpose two bid in any suit but clubs. This bid would usually show a weak two bid in the next suit but might show a very strong distributional hand in the suit bid.

This time Ira had the strong hand. Jeff's response of two spades said, "If you do have a weak two bid, let's play it there."

Ira's two no-trump call was the third straight artificial bid of the hand. It said, "I have a strong hand with a solid seven-card heart suit."

They were sort of apologetic about Jeff's three-club call. It actually showed clubs. Ira's three-spade bid showed the ace, invited a slam mildly and warned about the diamond suit in case Jeff was thinking about no-trump.

Jeff's four no-trump call was plain old-fashioned Blackwood, as was Ira's five-spade response to show three aces.

This was enough for Jeff. He counted to 13 and bid seven no-trump to get the maximum match point score.

Who's New Club Luncheon and Bridge Party

Mrs. Ishan Bolat, chairman of the hostess committee for Tuesday's Who's New Club bridge-luncheon at Emerald Hill Country Club, was assisted by Mrs. Carmen Christianson, Mrs. Elmer Oberlander, Mrs. David Berglund, Mrs. Olin Hall and Mrs. Allan Cumberland.

Guests and new Dixon residents introduced by Mrs. Donald Bryant, club sponsor, included Mrs. David Deitz, Freeport; Mrs. E. E. Taylor, Cedar Rapids Iowa; Mrs. Connie James, Sheffield; Mrs. David Lavingon, Macomb; Mrs. Richard Holtman, Waterloo, Iowa; Mrs. Bruce Bennett, Rockford, and Mrs. Paul Nielson, Berkley, Mich., who is a houseguest of her daughter, Mrs. Bolat.

Winners of score prizes in bridge were Mrs. Ted Tollefson, Mrs. Jack Bryson and Mrs. Thomas Martin, and the afternoon's special prize went to Mrs. Selim Dikman.

During a brief business session, Mrs. Merlin Leifker, club president, announced that the coming season would include both afternoon and evening meetings.

Travel Club Plans Picnic

The Dixon Travel Club has planned a picnic for 6 p.m. Tuesday in Lowell Park near the pavilion.

Meat will be furnished by the hostess committee, and members are asked to provide additional picnic food and table service.

In case of inclement weather, the picnic will be held at the home of Mrs. Warren Badger.

Miss Mary Loftus Weds Edgar E. Parker in St. Charles

ST CHARLES — White gladioli and chrysanthemums were combined in bouquets decorating the altar of St. Patrick's Catholic Church when marriage vows were exchanged at 1 p.m. Saturday by Miss Mary Loftus and Edgar Eugene Parker.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Loftus, St. Charles, formerly of Dixon, and she is the granddaughter of Mrs. William Loftus and Werner Marloth, Dixon. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth P. Parker, Beaver Dam, Wis.

Officiating clergyman for the ceremony was the Rev. Walter Roberts, pastor of the church, and a former assistant pastor at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Dixon.

Organza Gown

White silk organza and Chantilly lace fashioned the chapel-length gown worn by the bride, who was given in marriage by her father. A mandarin lace collar and short, puffed sleeves were features of the gown's empire bodice, which topped a full skirt accented by a hemline border of lace. A Camelot bonnet of matching lace held her bouffant illusion veil, and she carried a bridal bouquet of miniature white roses, carnations, daisies, ivy strands and sprays of spring rye.

Miss Louise Loftus was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Parker, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., sister of the bridegroom; Miss Susan Brown, Geneva, and Miss Barbara Dombrowski.

Their identical empire gowns of flocked maize voile were designed with full-length skirts falling from midriffs of matching velvet ending in bows with attached streamers. Maline veiling encircled their Camelot bonnets of white ruffled lace, and the wicker baskets they carried held arrangements of yellow and white daisies and spring rye.

A pearl-embroidered rolled collar accented the celery-green silk dress worn by Mrs. Loftus with a matching long-sleeved coat, and a beige silk dress and coat ensemble trimmed in cocoa-brown was selected for the ceremony by the bridegroom's mother. Their flowers were shoulder corsages of white orchids.

Gary Tredway, St. Louis, Mo., attended Mr. Parker as best man, and wedding guests were ushered by Bruce Dopp, Thomas Clark, and Gregg Davies, Wild Rose, Wis., and the bride's brothers, William and Martin Loftus.

The St. Charles Ramada Inn was the setting for a reception and champagne-buffet following the ceremony, and when the newlyweds departed on a southern wedding trip, the bride was attired in a black-and-white checked dress and a matching coat.

Mr. Parker has completed service with the Army in Vietnam, and the newlyweds are currently enrolled as students at Broward College, in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., where they will be residing.

Prenuptial Parties

Prenuptial parties in St. Charles for Saturday's bride included showers given by Mrs. Floyd Carlson and the honoree's bridesmaids, Miss Brown and Miss Dombrowski.

Mrs. Stanley Hall, Elgin, entertained guests at a party honoring her niece, and the bridegroom's sisters, Mrs. James Conley and Miss Barbara Parker, were co-hostesses at a party in Wild Rose. A luncheon at Emerald Hill Country Club, rural Sterling, was hosted by Mrs. William Loftus to honor her granddaughter, and the bride's aunts, Mrs. E. Miller McCall and Mrs. Donald Youngmark, were co-hostesses for a bridal luncheon Friday in Aurora.

25th Anniversary Is Celebrated

POLO—The 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Mekeel, Rt. 3, was celebrated at a dinner Tuesday night in the White House, Dixon, arranged by their four children, Mrs. Wendell (Jan) Miller, Polo, and Rock, Michael and Jerry Mekeel.

Centering the dinner table was a pink and white floral arrangement accented by a silver wedding anniversary emblem.

Mr. Mekeel and the former Miss Betty Hamburg of Harmon, were married Aug. 25, 1945, in St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Dixon, by the Rev. R. W. Roberts, and they have two grandsons, Jon and Marc Miller, Polo.

Guests attending the anniversary party included their children, the Julius Mekeels, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamburg Jr., and Linda, Harmon; the Robert Whitings and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rios, Sterling; the Joseph Mekeels, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Apple and the William Shipperts, Dixon; Mrs. Rose Kirkstatter, Mendota; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hunt, Ladd, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Morrissey Jr., Amboy. Unable to be present was Mrs. Verna Hamburg of the Franklin Grove Nursing Center.

The dinner was followed by a card party in the William Shippert home when refreshments included a heart-shaped white cake prepared by Mrs. Herman Giles, Polo. Decorated with pink rosebuds and silver bells, the cake was topped by figures of a bridal couple, which trimmed a cake served at the Mekeels' wedding in 1945.

A decorated cake, prepared by Mrs. Noah Beard, Dixon, was also served during an observance of the birthdays of Mrs. Mekeel and Mr. Shippert, and gifts for the honorees included an arrangement of roses from the Shipperts' garden.

CORRECTION

Friday night's society section contained an announcement of an open house planned to honor the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Parker Sr., 301 Spruce St., Dixon. The event is planned for 2 to 4 p.m. Sept. 6 in the honorees' home.

Lines which appeared on page proof were mysteriously missing in the newspaper, and the final paragraph should have read:

"Friends and relatives of the honoree couple are invited to attend the anniversary open house, which is being planned by their children, and it is requested that gifts be omitted."

WOTM Chapter

Mrs. Harold Horton presided at Tuesday night's meeting in the Moose Home for the Dixon Chapter, Women of the Moose.

John Burmeister, governor of the Loyal Order of the Moose, and Carrol L. Horton expressed appreciation to WOTM members for assisting at Saturday night's party observing the 53rd anniversary of the LOTM when more than 100 guests attended.

The birthdays of Mrs. Gerald Kerley, Mrs. Theodore Hinrichs and Mrs. Vern Stafford were observed, and Mrs. Edward Skowera was appointed chairman for a "swap party" planned for Sept. 30.

Mrs. Florence Kirby attended as a guest, and musical entertainment was provided by Mrs. John Cicero.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — I am a lab technician who would like to offer some suggestions that make tests easier for the technician, the parents and especially the child. If you know ahead of time that the child is to have a blood test, explain it to him briefly, probably on the way to the lab. If told too early their imaginations work overtime. Once there, let the technician do the talking. Most of us have routines we use to make friends fast. It is confusing to the child if both parent and technician try to talk to him at the same time.

Never tell a child it will not hurt when it will. Tell him it will hurt a little. Perhaps next time all that is needed will be an X ray and he will not be unnecessarily frightened and upset because he will no longer believe you when you say it will not hurt. Never threaten a child with a shot. This may sound too obvious to many parents but often we hear, "If you are not good, that naughty nurse will give you a shot."

Parents should remember that blood tests hurt no more than a bumped head or skinned knee and children have countless numbers of these before reaching school age — M. H.

DEAR POLLY — Marie, who has difficulty putting on her shoes because of arthritis, will find that most department and many chain stores carry a long-handled metal shoe horn almost as long as a cane. Mine is covered with a leatherlike material. They make very attractive gifts, too, and are usually on display at the holiday season. If you do not see one, ask the manager of the gift or notion counter. — MARY R.

DEAR POLLY — Someone once asked how to keep day-old bread that is put in the freezer from drying out. Remove the bread from the freezer. Always leave it in the plastic bag closed with the twister until the bread thaws at room temperature. As the bread thaws, it absorbs the moisture in the bag and will be like fresh bread. — Mrs. L. M. C.

DEAR POLLY — I shine and buff my shoes each morning without getting polish on my hands. I use a soft quilted pot holder, the glove kind. It can be new or used. Just wash it and it gives a fine shine and firm control — SHARON

Bradshaw Living Up To Hopes; Racks NY

By BOB DiPIETRO
UPI Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Steelers' Terry Bradshaw describes himself as "this kid from the Bayou," but he is no backwoods boy. Not when it comes to playing football. Ask the New York Giants.

Country boy Bradshaw, who played his college ball at Louisiana Tech and was the nation's No. 1 pro draft selection last January, took apart the Giants' defense with urbane sophistication Friday night. He completed 15 of 23 passes, including a 37-yard touchdown toss to fellow rookie Ron Shanklin, to lead the Steelers to an easy 21-6 victory before 35,951 fans at Pittsburgh.

Preston Pearson, scored the Steelers' first touchdown on a three-yard run in the first quarter. Pittsburgh went ahead 14-0 on Bradshaw's scoring aerial to Shanklin, and it was all over.

Pete Gogolak accounted for all of New York's points with two field goals.

In last night's only other contest, the Washington Redskins, led by a standout defensive performance that included two interceptions and two fumble recoveries, scored a 27-0 victory over the Buffalo Bills for their third win in four preseason games.

A clash of unbeatens —the Baltimore Colts and the Miami Dolphins, both sporting 3-0 exhibition game records — highlights tonight's eight-game schedule. In the other contests, Cleveland meets Cincinnati, Boston plays New Orleans at Jackson, Miss., Dallas is at Houston, Kansas City at Atlanta, Los Angeles at San Diego, Chicago at St. Louis and San Francisco meets Denver at Eugene, Ore.

A national TV Sunday doubleheader has Green Bay at Oakland in the first contest (CBS-6 p.m. EDT) and the New York Jets at Minnesota (NBC-9 p.m. EDT). Monday night's Philadelphia - Detroit contest wraps up the fourth preseason weekend.

Don Shula, the veteran Baltimore coach, joined Miami last Feb. 18 with a lucrative five-year contract, but the Dolphins subsequently were fined for "tampering" with the property of another club. So Shula would like nothing better than for the Dolphins to win their fourth straight at the expense of his old club.

Don McCafferty, the Colts' new coach plans to start Johnny Unitas, a 15-year veteran and one of the all-time great pro quarterbacks.

A crowd in excess of 70,000 is expected to jam Miami's Orange Bowl to witness the struggle.

A crowd of more than 58,000, the largest in Cincinnati sports history, is expected at the new Riverfront Stadium for the tussle between old master Paul Brown's Bengals and the Browns, once guided by Brown, and now led by one of his former assistants, Blanton Collier. Both teams have 1-2 preseason marks.

The Chargers, who play host to the Rams, bolstered their kicking game with the signings of ex-Packer Mike Mercer and former Forty Niner Momcilo Gavric to replace the ailing Dennis Partee.

McLain Suspended Again

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tiger bad boy Denny McLain, shocked at the suspension imposed on him Friday night by General Manager Jim Campbell, lashed out at him for "never standing behind his players" and said, "I got down on my knees and begged to be traded."

"I don't believe it. I don't believe it. I don't believe it," moaned the 26-year-old pitcher as he leaned back against a car in the darkened Tiger Stadium parking lot about midnight.

"I was just clowning around, that was easy to see," he explained.

About 45 minutes earlier Campbell suspended McLain "for an indefinite period not to exceed 30 days for conduct unbecoming a professional baseball player."

Campbell's action followed a telephone call from baseball writer Watson Spoelstra of the Detroit News who complained that before the Tigers' 6-2 loss to Oakland McLain had dumped a pail of water on him in the clubhouse.

It was the second suspension for the cocky pitcher this year. After being under indefinite suspension during spring training, baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn formally suspended McLain April 1 for associating with gamblers in 1967. That suspension was lifted July 1 and Denny returned that day to pitch for Detroit.

Friday's incident occurred after McLain also dumped a pail of water on Jim Hawkins, baseball writer for the Detroit Free Press.

"It was a setup — all a big joke," McLain told Larry Paladino, Associated Press sports writer. "You were going to get it too, and so was Rich Shook from UPI."

Campbell called Denny into his office after the game, with manager Mayo Smith in attendance.

"I'll tell you what I did and this is the truth," Denny said, running his hands through his thick blond hair. "I got down on my hands and knees in Campbell's office and begged to be traded because of the way he has handled team matters in the last three or four years."

"He never stands behind his players. I'll tell you what. Mr. Miller is going to do something about this."

The two-time Cy Young Award winner, who won 31 games in 1968 and 24 last season, said he planned to telephone Marvin Miller, executive director of the Baseball Players Association, and see if Miller could get the suspension lifted.

Since his return McLain has started 15 games. He has a 3-5 record and 4.65 earned-run-average, giving up 19 home runs in the span.

"Do you think Campbell would have suspended me if we were three games out? Hell no But, what are we, about 17 games out now?"

With a month of the season remaining Detroit is in third place in the America League East, 15½ games behind front-running Baltimore and four behind New York.

Kuhn was on vacation, but in New York a spokesman for the commissioner said Kuhn would probably look into the matter since he had warned McLain at the time of his reinstatement to be on his good behavior.

In his official statement Campbell said: "McLain has been suspended without salary for an indefinite period not to exceed 30 days for conduct unbecoming a professional baseball player."

"How long do you think you'll be out?" Denny was asked.

"Thirty days," he replied before being told of Campbell's "not to exceed 30 days" wording.

"Not to exceed 30 days? Man, he sure leaves himself an easy out doesn't he," said the emotionally keyed up pitcher.

"Who knows? I may not even miss a start."

McLain was scheduled to start Sunday against Oakland.

Spoelstra explained his drubbing: "I don't usually go in the clubhouse before a game but the guard at the door said Denny wanted to see me.

"I went over there and we talked for a while. He said he didn't like the headline in the paper the other day but my story was okay. We shook hands and he said, 'We've always been good friends and we're still good friends'."

"Keep your chin up, I told him, and then turned and walked away. That's when he dumped the water on me. My coat is still wet."

McLain apparently was somewhat upset about news stories after he lost Wednesday night's game to California.

The News headline said: "Denny-booed, cusses ump."

Houston Drops Mets; Marichal Rips Bucs

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Wade Blasingame's Golden Rule where ex-schoolmate Tom Seaver and the New York Mets are concerned is: Do unto others before they do it unto you.

Blasingame, a left-hander recently recalled by Houston from the minor leagues after several seasons in the majors with the Braves and Astros, beat Seaver and the Mets for the second time in 10 days 2-1 Friday night and ran his career mark against the New Yorkers to 9-0.

It was the Mets' fourth loss in five games but again they didn't lose any ground to Pittsburgh, in the National League East, remaining 2½ games behind the Pirates, who were the victims of Juan Marichal's 200th career victory, losing to San Francisco 5-1.

The Chicago Cubs, however, pulled to within three games of the top as Ferguson Jenkins ran his record against San Diego to 6-0 and doubled home two big runs as the Cubs rallied for five runs in the eighth and an 8-4 triumph.

Elsewhere in the NL, Montreal upended Cincinnati 4-3 in 10 innings, St. Louis nipped Los Angeles 1-0 and Philadelphia whipped Atlanta 5-2.

A bases-loaded walk, John Callison's sacrifice fly, Jenkins' double and a wild pitch accounted for the five runs that lifted the Cubs past the Padres. But the busiest man in the park was umpire Andy Olsen, who ejected catcher Randy Hundley and manager Leo Durocher of the Cubs in the fifth inning and relief pitcher Ron Herbel and skipper Preston Gomez of the Padres in the ninth.

Hundley got the thumb when he refused to give Olsen a ball when he was rubbing up, hiding it behind his back, and Durocher followed him when he took the ball and rolled it into the Chicago dugout.

Herbel beefed on a ball four call to Jim Hickman in the ninth, leading to the Cubs' final run, and Olsen told him to quiet down.

"If you could see as well as you hear, you'd be a great umpire," Herbel said, and he was gone.

When Gomez stood up for his pitcher, Olsen told him the bespectacled Herbel should get a new pair of glasses.

"How would you like it," Gomez wanted to know, "if I told your umpiring supervisor that you need glasses?"

"Talke a walk," said Olsen.

Boots Day singled home the winning run as the Expos beat Cincinnati's Big Red Machine for the fourth time in a row. Bob Bailey homered for the winners and Bobby Tolan connected for the Reds.

Jerry Reuss of St. Louis and Don Sutton of Los Angeles traded two-hitters for eight innings but Joe Torre opened the ninth with his 17th homer, giving the Cards the edge. Both Dodger hits were singles by Bill Sudakis.

Larry Bowla stole three bases, including home, to spark the Phillies over the Braves. The winners snapped a scoreless tie with three runs in the fifth on run-scoring singles by Deron Johnson and Johnny Briggs and Don Money's sacrifice fly. Dick Selma, another product of Fresno High, got the save with 1 1-3 innings of strong relief work.

1970—A Long Year for Chiefs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)— This may be the year of impatience for Kansas City Chiefs fans. Because now they expect the Chiefs to repeat as Super Bowl champions.

Kansas City fans have never shown a great amount of self-control before. Quarterback Len Dawson has been booed unmercifully in years past.

But, with the Super Bowl championship also came a certain kind of above-it-all attitude. That may be a short-term thing.

Dawson suffered a horrible night in the Chiefs' only preseason game at home this year, a 17-3 loss to the Baltimore Colts. Ken threw three interceptions. He also failed to motivate the team on several crucial third-down situations.

Outlook Still Good

The fans didn't boo. But the shuffling of feet and under-the-breath mutterings were ominous.

"It looks like it's going to be a long year," one fan said to another as they were leaving the stadium.

Well. . .not too long.

To expect the Chiefs—or any other team, for that matter—to repeat a championship season is ridiculous these days. Among the top teams, it's virtually certain the one with the least injuries will play into January. For instance, the Chief played the entire 1969 season with their defensive unit intact.

That may be a more remarkable feat than winning the Super Bowl.

Firm Defensive Anchors

Flitting and darting all over the field—and just knocking heads when necessary—are three of the finest linebackers anywhere—Bobby Bell, Willie Lanier and Jim Lynch.

The front four, from left to right, are Jerry Mays, Curley Culp, Buck Buchanan and Aaron Brown.

Johnny Robinson, the only member of the original Chiefs, nee Dallas Texans in 1960, patrols the secondary from his safety position. James Marsalis and Emmitt Thomas are the cornerbacks and Jim Kearney is the other safety.

Compton's Squashes Dixon Merchants, 3-1

Ed Anson's bases-loaded double in the sixth inning gave Compton a 3-1 win over the Dixon Merchants Friday night, winning league playoff tournament at Reynolds Field.

Merchants and Compton's played to a scoreless tie through five innings, but Anson's double in the top of the sixth scored three. The Merchants could score only a lone run in the bottom of that inning.

Both teams participate in a six-team tournament Sunday afternoon, starting at 2 p.m. Compton meets La Moille in the first contest, followed by Tiger Tap of Freeport and the Dixon Merchants at 2:30 p.m. and the Thomeway-Newell Manufacturing game at 5 p.m.

The championship game is scheduled for 8:30 p.m.

Cleveland Hands Angels 3-2 Defeat

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rookie Rich Hand put a temporary halt to the streaking California Angels but the American League West battle is rapidly tightening as the Minnesota Twins continue their fadeaway.

The Angels ran their winning streak to four in beating Cleveland 3-2 in the opener of a twi-night doubleheader Friday night but Hand, a right-hander, came back in the nightcap to stop California 5-1 with a one-hitter.

However, in New York, the Yankees nailed the Twins twice, belting Minnesota 6-0 behind Fritz Peterson's three-hitter in the opener then taking the second 2-1 on Mike Kekich's five-hitter.

It was the Twins 15th loss in their last 21 contests going back to Aug. 9, when they held a nine-game edge over the Angels. That margin is now down to three.

"They're making it harder on themselves," said Bill Rigney, skipper of the Twins, after the double loss. "They're trying too hard. Our pitching has been decent for the most part but we're not getting enough runs.

"They've been in a pennant race before. It shouldn't shake them but the way things are going . . . I don't know," Rigney added.

Hand, now 6-9, is 4-0 over the Angels this year. "I don't know what it is," he said. I just luck out against them. We get the runs and the breaks, it seems, when I pitch against them."

The lone hit off Hands came in the first inning when Roger Repoz ripped his 18th homer of the year.

In other AL games, Baltimore split a twinbill with Milwaukee, dropping the opener 2-1 before taking the finale 8-4, Washington and Kansas City split, the Senators copping 2-1 before losing 3-1, Oakland topped Detroit 6-2 and Boston edged Chicago 5-4.

The Angels won the first game on consecutive eighth-inning singles by Sandy Alomar, Repoz and Jim Fregosi. It was Fregosi's 16th game-winning hit.

"He should be the most valuable in the league," said Angels manager Lefty Phillips of his shortstop. Fregosi has driven in 72 runs with a .286 average, including 19 homers.

The Yankees took the opener behind Peterson, 14-9, and Gene Michael's three runs batted in.

Bobby Murcer raced home from third with the winner in the ninth inning of the nightcap on reliever Ron Perranoski's wild pitch with two out.

Danny Walton cracked a two-run double in the sixth inning and Marty Pattin tossed a four-hitter at the Orioles in the opener before Don Buford powered a grand slam homer, capping a five-run Orioles' sixth inning in the second game, gaining a split with the Brewers.

Gene Tenace drove in three runs and "Blue Moon" Odom scattered four hits in 7 1-3 innings as the A's got to within seven games of the Twins in the West.

It was only Oakland's second triumph in 12 starts. Campy Campaneris slugged his 18th homer for the A's off the Tigers' Mickey Lolich, 12-15.

Rico Petrocelli cracked three hits including a homer and Reggie Smith also homered for the Red Sox. Bill Melton had a two-run shot for the White Sox.

Lou Piniella drilled a two-run blast, giving the Royals their second-game victory after the Senators' Dick Bosman had stopped Kansas City on five hits in the opener.

Moody Shares Tourney Lead

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Orville Moody might be a former U.S. Open champion and the Indian of the year, but he was just another struggling golfer until he got a little help from a friend.

Moody, who won the Open and the World Series of Golf last year, but is far down the money list this year, used a little advice offered by fellow pro Phil Rodgers to fire a course-record 64 Friday. Moody tied Bruce Crampton and Paul Harney for the lead with a 136 at the halfway point of the Dow Jones Open.

Moody was limping along at one-over-par after 12 holes in Thursday's first round, when Rodgers, his playing partner, told him to move his hands a little forward on his clubs. He did and he's gone nine-under for 24 holes since.

"I never listened to tips before," Moody said after Friday's round. "But I had been going so badly so I thought I'd try it."

Moody, Crampton and Harney, all eight-under-par, are one stroke ahead of Labron Harris and two ahead of Bobby Nichols. Young Mike Reasor, the first-round leader, shot a 73 and was in a group at 139 with Larry Hinson, Terry Wilcox and PGA champion Dave Stockton.

Most of golf's biggest names were well out of the running as par took a beating for the second straight day on the 7,085-yard Upper Montclair Country Club course.

Pre-tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus, however, fired a 68 after an opening round 73, and was only five strokes back at 141. Arnold Palmer was at 143 after a two-under-par 70, and Billy Casper bothered by a bad back, just made the cut to the low 70 and ties at even-par 144. Casper had a 74 for Friday's round.

Among those missing the cut were Lee Trevino, Frank Beard, Gary Player, and Moody's benefactor, Rodgers, who had an 81 for a 153 total.

Adoption: Answer to Population Explosion

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Adoption has long been regarded as a means whereby infertile couples can satisfy their yearning for children.

It still fulfills that role admirably. But there is a growing realization among thoughtful people that adoption also makes sense for couples who already have one or more children of their own.

By adopting a baby instead of having one, a husband and wife can expand their family without any guilt feelings about adding to population pressure.

This is an important consideration to many people who believe that a sharply reduced birth rate is essential to any long-range plan for solving urban problems and curbing the alarming deterioration of the natural environment.

Every Couple has Duty

Some argue that every couple has a moral duty to help achieve a zero growth rate in population by limiting themselves to a maximum of two offspring.

But a couple who have two children can adopt another, or several more, without the slightest effect on the birth rate. They're not bringing new lives into a croseed world: They're simply providing homes for children already born.

Thus, they relieve two urgent social problems at once. They help to curb population growth, and they also privide the nurture of a loving family environment for children who might otherwise wind up in the cold and crippling atmosphere of an institution.

There is a particularly acute shortage of adoptive parents for black and racially mixed children. Of 195,000 black children born out of wedlock last year, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimates, about 30,000 have no hope of finding a permanent home.

Remarkable Number Respond

Some young couples—a remarkable number, considering the psychological and cultural obstacles involved — are responding to this human tragedy by interracial adoptions. A survey by Charles Olds of the Boys and Girls Aid Society of Portland, Ore., indicates that nearly 2,000 children of black ancestry were adopted by white families last year. A few years ago, interracial adoptions were so rare they were counted in tens rather than thousands.

Author Sidney Callahan, a Roman Catholic mother of six children, sees spiritual as well as social values in the new movement to "have some and adopt some."

"As Christians we are nowhere in the New Testament enjoined to have children, but to accept and value children. Conception and childbirth are glorious experiences—but so is the adoption of love, which creates a family just as surely."

Henert Reunion Is Held

The 31st annual Henert reunion was held recently at the Ashton Bank social room, with 92 relatives and guests attending. Prayer was offered by Duane Henert preceding the noon meal, after which Mrs. Walter Hunter, president, conducted the business meeting.

Harold Henert received the loving cup for being the oldest Henert descendant not having previously received it. Jonathon Huene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Huene, was the youngest descendant to receive the cup.

Mrs. Rose Heibenthal was awarded the prize for having the largest number of members of her family present. Mr. and Mrs. Jeryl Krug and family, Des Moines, Iowa, received the award for coming the longest distance. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kersten were the couple married the longest and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Huene, the youngest married couple.

Officers for the 1972 reunion are: Mrs. Harold Henert, president; Jerry Griffin, vice president; Mrs. Floyd Johns, secretary and Allen Linscott, treasurer.

Mrs. John Heune entertained with a reading.

Economy Problems Loom Before British Government

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Conservative party government, a bare two months in office, has big economic trouble on its hands.

The words "crisis" and "devaluation"—dirty words in any economic vocabulary—are making big headlines.

Prime Minister Edward Heath has summoned vacationing ministers back to London for a Sept. 3 cabinet meeting to discuss what to do about the economic difficulties into which Britain appears to be heading.

British newspapers and members of Parliament, recalling that the Conservatives made a big issue of the country's economic troubles in the recent general election campaign, are beginning to clamor for action.

No Lack of Warning

There has been no lack of warning red lights.

The National Institute for Social and Economic Research, a private but widely respected economic study group, said this week if the government does not act soon to give Britain's economy a jolt in the arm, another devaluation of the pound may ultimately be necessary.

The wage-price inflation, about which the Conservatives slammed the former Labor party government in the election campaign, continues unabated.

Official figures showed living costs skyrocketed at an annual rate of eight per cent in the first half of 1970.

Wages Soar

Last year wages soared by an average 10.2 per cent and now are rising at a 12 per cent annual rate, according to official figures.

The Conservatives were swept to power two months ago on pledges to slash taxes, halt inflation, trim unemployment and get the economy moving.

"Today's big question," said the left-leaning The Sun, "is: What is the government going to do? It is too late to go on just thinking. They've been talking about it long enough."

Navy Bungling Led to Pueblo Capture: Bucher

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty months after being released from captivity in North Korea, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, skipper of the spy ship Pueblo, has become an author, regained the weight he lost in prison and developed a paunch.

His growing bay window is not unexpected for a man of 43. The book is something else again.

In it, the officer who hopes he still has a career in the Navy, argues that it was Navy bungling that led to the capture of the USS Pueblo on Jan. 23, 1968.

"Bucher: My Story" was published this month by Doubleday. To promote it Bucher took leave and came to Washington where he spent two hours in the Pentagon Book Store one day autographing copies for long lines of the curious.

Combination Leads to Capture

In an interview with UPI, Bucher said a combination of incompetant naval officers and a bureaucracy that would not bend led to the capture of the Pueblo and its 83 officers and men.

The graying commander said some unknown person floated the initial idea for dispatching ships weighed down with intricate electronic gear to listen in on Soviet radio and radar frequencies.

Then a staff study was made and the plan approved at the highest level. The plan was rated a "minimum risk operation" since the ships always would remain in international waters and the Soviets respected the freedom of the seas.

Even more important was the fact that the Russians operated similar electronic spy ships off the American coasts. The U.S. planners reasoned that the Soviets would never touch an American spy ship because unarmed Russian counterparts would be susceptible to retaliation.

Later the spy ship mission was changed to include nosing around off the Chinese and North Korean coasts. This created risks which had not been envisioned in the original staff study.

No One Reworked Study

"But no one reworked the staff study," Bucher said. "It was assumed that since approval came from high up in the Joint Chiefs of Staff that they knew what they were doing."

Bucher still believes the United States made a mistake in not retaliating against the North Koreans immediately after they seized the lightly armed Pueblo.

Asked if he still has a career in the Navy in the wake of the Pueblo case and his own criticism of the Navy hierarchy, Bucher said, "I hope so. I'm still a highly qualified naval officer."

It remains to be seen if the Navy feels the same way about the man who wrote that the official inquiry into the Pueblo case "left a few holding the sack for the many who are gutless."

Sublette Resident Goes West

SUBLETTE — Judy Henkel recently left for California to visit Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert L. Theiss and family, Riverside. From there she was to leave for San Francisco, where she plans to work.

Mr. and Mrs. James Malach, Joan, Julie and Bill and Mr. and Mrs. John E. Goy, Dixon, and Tom Burkardt, West Brooklyn, have returned home from a week's vacation at Pine Haven Resort, Shawano, Wis. Denise Malach and Larry Henkel were weekend guests at the cottage. Mr. and Mrs. John G. Goy, Dixon, were also guests during the week.

Youth Poisons Family Drinks; Parents Put Up Bond, Hire Lawyer

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI—Jerry Schipper, 18, was charged with attempted murder after he told police he tried to poison his parents because they scolded him.

When he was arrested in June, poison was found in his father's beer, and in milk, orange juice and soft drinks in the family refrigerator.

The mother and father signed the compliant, charging their son tried to kill them.

Today the youth was back home again—his parents had put up the $2,500 bond to free him.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schipper of suburban Wyoming, who first charged their son with trying to poison them, came to his defense. They obtained an attorney to represent him and have appeared at his side in several court appearances.

Last week defense attorney Leo Stevens obtained an order from Probate Court Judge Richard Loughrin, committing the youth to the Coldwater State Home and Training School as a "mentally retarded subject." Stevens said Wednesday the school reported it is full and probably cannot take the youth for several months.

"The court granted bond of $2,500 pending his admission to the training school. The parents put up the money and have taken him home because they don't want him to stay in jail any longer," Stevens said.

At the time of his arrest in June police said Schipper spiked his father's beer with poison, but the father detected a chlorine taste and spit it out.

Traces of cyanuric acid, a chemical which slows dissipation of chlorine in swimming pools, also were found by investigators in milk, orange juice and soft drinks in the family refrigerator.

According to Officer Donald De Petro, the youth, who was enrolled in a special education program for slow learners, told him he tried to poison his parents because they scolded him for skipping job-training classes and using the family car without their knowledge.

The two charges in circuit court are being held in abeyance pending outcome of its commitment.

Shook Up

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI)—Six cars of a 100-car freight train derailed after somebody shook up go-go dancer Mary Hecox.

Miss Hecox, 24, who dances in a local night spot, was driving home when she noticed a car following her, police said. She tried to lose the car but it struck her vehicle in the rear and forced it onto a railroad crossing, where it stalled.

A policeman came by and used his flashlight to flag down an approaching 100-car Chesapeake & Ohio freight train. The engineer had to stop so suddenly that six cars derailed and tracks were torn up.

Short Power Cords

Shortening the power cord of portable electric tools such as sanders, drills, and saws to about 12 in. and then fitting a grounding plug makes these tools much more convenient to handle and store, especially where the tools are kept in individual carrying cases. Each tool is then operated by plugging it into one end of a long heavy-duty cord, preferably a three-wire grounded cord, from a nearby outlet.

You've been spending $2.64 a day to keep the war going.

If you're the head of an average American family, you paid approximately $600 of your tax money last year for the war in Southeast Asia. And inflation, caused by the war, meant you were out another $350. That works out to about $2.64 a day out of your pocket.

If you find it hard to make it financially these days, the answer's simple: you're buying a war!

But there is something you can do. Your Senator is going to have to vote on an amendment called "The Amendment to End the War". It's sponsored by U.S. Senators McGovern, Hatfield, Goodell, Hughes, and Cranston and supported by 19 others, so far. It puts some rational brakes on the war. It does it in a lawful, orderly way. Through your elected representative.

And all you have to do is write your Senator, care of the Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. Just say "I can't buy the war any more. Please vote for The Amendment to End the War". Write your representative, care of the House Office Building, and urge him to vote for the House version of the amendment.

And if you have a spare dollar, send it to The Amendment to End the War, Box 1A, Benjamin Franklin Station, Washington, D.C. 20044. It will help us print more ads like this one.

If you don't have a spare dollar, have courage. We're working on it.

Now spend 6¢ and try to end it.

Paw Paw Faculty Announced

PAW PAW — Announcement has been made of the faculty and other personnel for the Paw Paw Elementary School for the 1970-71 year.

The list is as follows: kindergarten, Mrs. Kenneth Merriman; first grade, Judith Leighton and Mrs. Oleva Johnson; second grade, Mrs. John Marks; third grade, Mrs. Carl Jump; fourth grade, Mrs. Bruce Wheeler; fifth grade, Mrs. Erwin Mittan and Kenneth Foster; upper grades, Mrs. Paul McDowell, Mrs. Harold Franks, Mrs. Raymond Stroyan and Judson Sodergren; music, Willem Blees and Janet Blees; special education, Mrs. Harold Englehart; teachers aide, Mrs. Gene Pohl; principal, Lloyd Collier and secretary, Mrs. Floyd Dewey.

Two new mobile classrooms have been added to provide much needed additional room for an ever-increasing elementary school enrollment. These classrooms will house the first grade which has been divided into two classes.

During the summer extensive remodeling was done at the large elementary building.

Homemakers Will Meet

SUBLETTE — The Sublette Homemakers Extension Unit will meet Sept. 3 at 1:30 p.m. in the Community Building. The major lesson will be Low Calorie Foods and Garnishes, presented by Mrs. Milton Rapp and Mrs. Stanley Lorenzana.

Hostesses will be Mrs. James Stewart and Mrs. Irvin Rapp.

Roll call will be answered by A Project I Have Planned for Winter.

Mrs. Delmer Dinges has been appointed chairman of the USO (United Service Organization) in this area and will be canvassing in the Village of Sublette in the near future.

* * *

Sept. 13 has been selected for the dedication day in honor of the late Mrs. Ellice Dinges.

Frightening

BECKENHAM, England (UPI) — A burglar who climbed through a kitchen window of Mrs. Phyllis Jowitt's home fled empty handed after he stepped on her washing machine's starter button, police said.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE O-518: Rev. Tom Paino Jr. invited me to occupy his pulpit at Indianapolis recently.

For I donate my Sundays to churches, if they are within 100 miles of our summer home in Indiana.

Mrs. Crane acts as my chauffeur, and we usually stay for dinner with the pastor and some of his church members.

Our fee is only our dinner, so instead of "singing for my supper," I speak for our dinner!

And we have spent many wonderful Sundays the past two years in this manner

But we doubly enjoyed our visit to Tom Paino's Assembly of God congregation. His father, formerly the pastor, led the singing.

And the music was contagious!

That congregation not only used the stirring hymns that are basic to revivalists like Billy Sunday, Billy Graham and such.

But the members sang till litterally even the visitors got infected by the melodic zeal.

Alas, far too many modern churches don't use "contagious music."

I have spoken before hundreds of Catholic, Jewish, Mormon and other Protestant denominations.

But rarely has a congregation sung like this one at Indianapolis.

In fact, several of the visitors, including some from 3 leading Methodist churches, told me afterward:

"Dr. Crane, I just wish our church folks could have been here to see what real congregation singing should be."

My son David has met us at the church and he was so captivated by the music that he wanted to go back that same evening just to hear more of the singing!

Yet he has visited all types of churches and witnessed the Army chaplain's programs while he was serving in Vietnam for a year as roving psychiatrist with the 25th Infantry Division.

In this column from time to time I have criticized the choice of songs of our fancy modern church choirs.

But technical musicians often lose sight of the practical purpose of church music. They lack the orator's viewpoint!

For they become enamoured of special choral arrangements, often almost totally unfamiliar to 95 per cent of the congregation.

And they pride themselves on their modulated voices, gentle harmony and occasional laryngeal pyrotechnics.

Yet the audience meanwhile is often daydreaming or thumbing through the church bulletins or whispering.

The primary purpose of church music is to prepare the entire congregation, not merely a dozen in the choir, so the pastor will have a polarized audience that is already uplifted and religiously enthused.

It thus takes "contagious music" to benefit the clergyman!

The modern, sissy type of choir singing leaves the audience "flat," uninspired and often even irritated at the waste of the 10 minutes required for that "special number."

If any of you parishioners with a ritzy brainwash re fancy choir pyrotechnics, still doubt my word, just watch your own congregation get the fidgets during next Sunday's choir singing!

Instead, pick surefire numbers that inspire 100 per cent audience participation and that almost burst the stained-glass windows outward with volume! And let the crowd join in the chorus!

For it requires "contagious music" to polarize an audience properly for the speaker!

(Always write to Dr Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed nvelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

A cup of borax added to washing water will bring shine to mirrors.

Week in Review

By RICHARD C. GROSS
United Press International

Women Liberationists, attempting to achieve full equality with men by mass action for the second time this century, marched and shouted in demonstrations from New York to San Francisco.

"This is not a bedroom war; this is a political movement" was the war cry, first uttered by feminist Mrs. Betty Friedan, around which thousands of women rallied Wednesday in a one-day nationwide strike for women's equality.

The biggest demonstrations were on the east and west coasts. About 20,000 paraded past elegant shops dedicated to glamorizing women on New York City's famed Fifth Avenue, 3,000 marched in Boston and 2,500 rallied in San Francisco.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., referred to the progress of woman in society and said the "bra-less band of bubble-heads" would set back the feminist cause for generations since the liberationists do not speak with a "valid voice" of American womanhood.

Judy Smith, 26, leader of an Austin, Tex., rally may have summed it all up: "If you sat at home all day just waiting for somebody to come home to you' you'd be bitchy, too."

Around the world by dateline:

United Nations — Diplomats from Egypt, Israel and Jordan conferred briefly with special Mideast mediator Gunnar V. Jarring in the opening of peace talks at the United Nations against the background of a 90-day ceasefire which expires Nov. 5.

Amman, Jordan—Arab commandos and representatives from Syria and Iraq called for continuing guerrilla raids against Israel. The commandos, Syria and Iraq have disavowed the ceasefire.

Saigon—The U.S. Command reported 52 Americans killed in Indochina the week ended Aug. 22, the lowest number of American dead in Incochina reported since December 1966. The low figures, including 1,055 enemy dead, reflected a battlefield lull.

Undated—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was on a tour of Southeast Asia, including South Vietnam and Cambodia, where he conferred with Asian leaders on American commitments.

Washington — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger denied the petitions of four southern school districts seeking a delay in desegregation orders until the U.S. Supreme Court rules on school busing.

Madison, Wis.—A violent explosion caused by a bomb set in a stolen truck killed a physicist, injured four others and destroyed a $1.5 million computer at the Army Mathematics Research Center on the University of Wisconsin campus.

Washington—Federal statistics showed a decline in the wholesale price index for the first time in two years amid growing indications inflation and the sluggish economy were on the upswing.

You'll find fruit turnovers are wonderful to take along on a picnic.
